MEDIA RELEASE

Gregory Sullivan, PE, PP, CME named Certified Energy Auditor
By the Association of Energy Engineers

Cinnaminson, NJ-- Remington, Vernick & Arango Engineers proudly announces that Gregory Sullivan, P.E., P.P., C.M.E., Senior Associate, has been named a Certified Energy Auditor by the Association of Energy Engineers. This title is given to those who complete the prescribed standards of certification and demonstrate a high-level of competence and ethical fitness in energy auditing.

According to the Association of Energy Engineers, the objectives of this certification are to raise the professional standards of those engaged in energy auditing; to improve the practice of energy auditors by encouraging energy auditing in a continuing education program of professional development; to identify persons with acceptable knowledge of the principles and practices of energy auditing through completing an examination and fulfilling prescribed standards of performance and conduct and to award special recognition to those energy auditing professionals who have demonstrated a high level of competence and ethical fitness in energy auditing.

Mr. Sullivan joined the firm in 1990 as an engineer, designing systems for sewerage treatment facilities, sanitary sewer pump stations and as the lead engineer for mechanical and electrical projects in the company. A graduate of Rutgers University, Mr. Sullivan has more than three decades of experience in various areas of municipal engineering and is a professional engineer, professional planner and certified municipal engineer in New Jersey. Recently, Mr. Sullivan has served as Project Manager for many solar energy projects completed by the firm in Evesham, North Hanover and Burlington Townships, NJ.

Remington, Vernick & Arango Engineers is an affiliate of Remington & Vernick Engineers, one of the oldest engineering firms in the country, founded in 1901 by J.C. Remington.
